Elk Perkins.

"Elk Perkins," Melville D. Landon addressed a large audience at the Baptist church last night, which for an hour and a half he kept continually convulsed with laughter.

Mr. Fuller was scarcely able to walk, the injury being due to a railroad accident, but the audience did not seem to realize it, owing to the ridiculous manner in which he told of it.

While in Daytona, Mr. Landon was the guest of his nephew, W. H. Davis, on Magnolia avenue.

Anton Maass bought a lot on the corner of South and Daytona streets, from Mrs. Coleman. During the coming summer he expects to build on it.

As will be seen by an announcement elsewhere, Dr. F. E. Houghton with his dental boat "Dentos" will be in Daytona on or before February 25. Dr. Houghton is well and favorably known in and around Daytona, and is always welcome here.

An Old Favorite

PARADISE

By Frederick William Faber

FREDERICK WILLIAM FABER, clergyman, priest and hymn writer, was born in Colverley, Yorkshire, England, in 1811 and died in Birmingham, England, in 1887. He was ordained in the Anglican church but left it for the Roman Catholic communion. Besides other poems Faber wrote many hymns that have gained widespread favor by their sweetness and spirituality.

PARADISE, O Paradise,
Who doth not crave for rest?
The heavenly place my dearest Lord
Where they that loved are blest?
Where loyal hearts and true
Stand ever in the light,
All rapture through and through,
In God's most holy sight.

O Paradise, O Paradise,
The world is growing old;
Who would not be at rest and free
Where love is never cold?
Where loyal hearts and true
Stand ever in the light,
All rapture through and through,
In God's most holy sight.

O Paradise, O Paradise,
Where they shall sit no more,
Who strive to be as pure on earth
As on the spotless shore;
Where loyal hearts and true
Stand ever in the light,
All rapture through and through,
In God's most holy sight.

O Paradise, O Paradise,
I feel 'twill not be long;
Patience! I almost think I hear
Faint fragments of thy song:
Where loyal hearts and true
Stand ever in the light,
All rapture through and through,
In God's most holy sight.

HER SEASON.

Fair as the budding of the dawn,
Graceful as a town,
Modest, yet wise,
With downcast eyes,
A blushing cheek,
Mock,
Denounce,
Pure,
As the winter snow,
And so
Cunning you can't resist her.
Say, mister,
Do you guess?
Yes?
Of course you do,
Who
Could mistake the June bride,
All wool and a yard wide?
All wool, of course, is figuratively speaking.
We're seeking
The exact truth we would say
Lawn, muslin and pique,
Soft, fluffy, light as air,
The stuff that angels wear,
With sunshine spun,
And well may she, being one,
Adopt their style of dress.
As we go to press,
We see no reason why
She should not. Money cannot buy
We are free to agree.
Anything too good for her,
She holds the center of the stage;
Is all the rage,
And well deserves to be.
But, let's see,
What of the June bridegroom?
Is there no room
For him?
Yes; in some corner dim
He sits subdued,
In passive mood,
Knowing that he has to play
A poor second, and that he may
Be thankful, though it jars his pride,
To be the annex of the June bride.

Indian Territory Settlers.
The summer and fall of 1904 will witness the greatest emigration to Indian Territory of any year in the history of the territory. Thousands of those who go will be entirely ignorant of the conditions, areas and people there. The total land area of Indian Territory is 31,000 square miles. The population in 1890 was 180,182, and in 1900 it was 292,000, an average yearly increase of 21.76 per cent. At this rate the population for the year 1905 was 457,855, and at the close of the year 1904 it will be 700,034. There are 87,000 Indians and 200,000 negroes on citizenship rolls. -Kansas City Star.

Ventriloquism.
Ventriloquism is but the peculiar method of vocalization which, differing from the ordinary colloquial way of making articulations forward in the mouth, alters the directions of these sounds by so managing the conformation of the mouth and lips as to keep back the vocalized sounds and cause their utterance to be so muffled and hollow as to appear like sounds more or less remote. It may be described as the art of speaking in such a way as to cause a hearer to believe that the sound comes not from the person speaking, but from a different source. The sounds are formed by the same organs as the emissions of sound commonly—the larynx, the palate, the tongue, the lips, etc.
The art of the ventriloquist consists merely in this: After drawing a long breath the performer breathes it out slowly and gradually, dexterously modifying and diminishing the sound of the voice by the muscles of the larynx and the palate. Besides this, he moves his lips as little as possible and by various contrivances diverts the attention of his audience.

Death of a Prominent Visitor

Alexander Halliday, a well known reporter in New York, died Monday night at the residence of Geo. W. Monroe, on Ridgewood avenue.

Mr. Halliday arrived in Daytona several weeks ago with the intention of spending the season here, and located at The Ridgewood. During the automobile races he caught a severe cold, due to exposure during the cold snap which prevailed and was confined to his room at the hotel.

Although 70 years of age, Mr. Halliday would easily have passed for 50, and was a hearty and fine looking man, hardly a promising looking subject for a serious case of pneumonia, and no apprehension was felt of a fatal ending.

Later Mr. Halliday was moved to the residence of his friend, Mr. Munroe, in order that he might have better care and here everything was done to alleviate his suffering. When it was seen that death was inevitable his son, Alexander B. Halliday, a prominent lawyer of New York, the only near relative of the deceased, was telegraphed for and reached here yesterday noon.

The body, accompanied by the son, left here yesterday for Yonkers, New York, the former home of Mr. Halliday, where it will be interred.

Geo. N. Chamberlain, Geo. H. Munroe, J. D. Robertson, Geo. M. P. Holt, Solomon Frankfield, E. H. Sperry, Mr. Bly, Mr. Shields and Aleck Binden were the pall bearers.

The Atlantic Coast Line will soon make many improvements in terminal facilities at Fort Myers.

THE PALMETTO STREET SEWERS

The Manholes Too High to Drain the Property at Palmetto and Cedar Streets.

Property owners in the neighborhood of Cedar and Palmetto streets are much put out at the way the sewer was built which is intended to drain that section of the city.

This sewer was completed several weeks ago, since which time there have been no heavy rains. This sewer cost the property owners 77 cents per foot, which is said to be the highest charge ever made for similar work. With many more openings the Cottage avenue sewer cost but 52 cents a foot, and why there should be such a difference property owners are anxious to learn.

The two principal manholes, located at the intersection of Cedar and Palmetto, are considerably higher than the surrounding ground, except to the westward, as can readily be seen by anyone who takes a careful survey of the property, and when the heavy spring rains set in, pools of water are certain to collect there, which will have to rise above the crossing before it can reach the opening.

R. J. Knight is going into the peach growing business on a large scale near Crystal River. He has set out eleven hundred trees and expects to have one of the best peach orchards in Florida.

The new bridge across Miami river at the foot of Twelfth street, as so far completed Friday as to be in of the crossing of teams.

Establishment of a packing factory at Palmetto market is cognizing of an industry which should spread all over South Florida.

Today the bond election will be held to determine whether the town of Kissimmee will bond itself in the sum of $5,000 for street improvement and $1,200 to take up the mortgage held by parties against the cemetery.
